A Message from the Executive Director and Board Chair

Our Mission: "Ensure the Success of Youth"

Last September, Katie (name changed) was "horribly depressed" and says although she was trying, nothing in her life was going right. Now, with the support of LAYSB counseling, LAYSB's chemical awareness program, and an LAYSB adult mentor, Katie is actively pursuing career options, shadowing professionals in the field she's interested in, and feeling very positive and happy about her future.

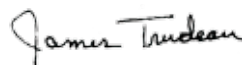

Our programs and services stem from evidence based research that tells us that if youth have at least one supportive relationship with a positive role model, meaningful opportunities for involvement in their communities, and access to challenging and engaging learning experiences, they will grow into adults who are able to care for themselves, care for others and contribute to their world in positive ways. Katie is well on her way. In the following few pages, you will read more stories and comments, and see pictures that demonstrate how these beliefs and values translate into positive, life-changing results for our clients and the entire community.

By working together, we can continue to strengthen our community and change lives for the better. Join in our efforts through volunteering, participating in our activities and events, and providing financial support to LAYSB.

"YSB is an essential part of this community in helping troubled teens understand the ramifications of their actions, whether good or bad."

A CIRCLE STORY

One winter evening a group of young men decided to have some "fun" and smash mailboxes around their community.

"We were bored and wanted something to do," said one youth.

The property damages totaled in the thousands and the local police were faced with a tough decision. If they sent the youth to court, they would likely face felony level charges. If they sent them through a direct diversion to Lakes Area Youth Service Bureau they might be able to avoid the life changing affects that a felony charge would have on their future.

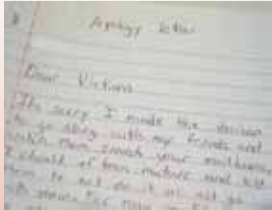

The police department chose to give the youth a second chance and send them to LAYSB for processing.

Along with restitution and community service hours, it was agreed that the youth would take part in a victim/offender community circle. They would get the chance to meet some of their victims face to face.

One of the youth said, "When I first heard I had to sit in a room with the people whose mailboxes we smashed, I thought it was going to be scary."

The circle was far from scary. In a safe and respectful environment the victims sat across from the youth and their parents. One by one everyone had a chance to share.

"When I saw the police at my door, the first thing I thought was that my daughter was hurt," said one victim.

"I was concerned my mail was lost and that I wouldn't be able to pay my bills. I wondered what else could have been damaged in and around my home," said another.

A parent said, "I felt embarrassed and mad that my son would treat others this way. I questioned my parenting. I'm glad we all are sitting here feeling uncomfortable. I hope we can learn a good lesson."

The mood of the circle was heavy. Parent's eyes were on the floor and the seriousness of the situation was setting in. However, as the circle went on the tone began to change. The victims began to turn things toward the positive:

"I commend you all for being here."

"I know you're all good kids. I hope you learn from this and move forward."

"Take pride in who you are and what abilities you have. Live a happy life and don't let this decision follow you around."

After hearing all of this, and seeing the genuine care and concern that their victims had for them, the youth then had a chance to apologize.

"I am truly sorry we did this. I am 100% positive we will never do this again. Thank you all for coming here and allowing us to have a second chance and turn a new page," said one youth.

"I didn't think about how this would affect you. Now I see how my decision has hurt you and I'm sorry," said another.

The circle was nearing the hour and a half mark. Things were winding down and nearly everything that needed to be said had been said.

Then, in a truly culminating moment, one of the victims said simply,

"I accept your apology."

A collective sigh of relief spread across the room. Eyes lifted from the floor and knowing nods of approval from the parents marked an acknowledgment that closure had been found.

Victims had been heard, harm had been repaired and everyone could move forward in positive ways.

One of the youth summed the experience up well,

"It worked out way better than I thought. I was expecting to come here and get yelled at but the victims actually just wanted us to think about how our choices affect ourselves and others. This could have affected our futures in a really bad way. Thanks for giving me another chance."

Jim Trudeau presented Washington County Deputy Chris Majeski with the 2009 James Trudeau Award which is given each year to an officer for outstanding service to youth.

Liana Johnson was the 2009 youth recipient of the On Behalf of Youth Award for the many leadership and organizational skills she demonstrated as a member of LAYSB's Youth Advisory Board.

Honorable Judge Robert Rancourt was presented the 2009 On Behalf of Youth Award by Jim Trudeau for his outstanding dedication and service to youth in our community.

Youth Participant

Responding to the growing need for youth recovery support services, LAYSB is providing a safe, secure, and confidential place just for teens. It's called "OUR PLACE" Teen Recovery Support Group and it provides an opportunity for teens ages 13-19 to gain insight into the process of their own recovery and to practice their potential to live a life free of addiction. Using a 12-step group approach, teens can share their experiences, strength, and hope in an atmosphere of acceptance and belonging. The meeting is facilitated by a LAYSB staff member and is held every Tuesday evening at 6:00pm in LAYSB's new group room.

"Coming Full Circle"

Fifteen years ago, Sarah (name changed) was a typical middle school student. She didn't quite know where to fit in and was looking for a place to belong. She found a place to belong in LAYSB enrichment programs called "Circle of Friends" and "Caring Kids." These programs no longer exist today, but at the time they were offered at her school and run by then-staff member, Laurie.

As Sarah progressed into high school, she drifted away from her positive peer groups and connections. She became pregnant and also lost a friend to suicide. Because of her positive connections and experiences with LAYSB, Sarah decided to reach out for help and talk to our then-therapist, Nancy.

"Those were dark years for me and being able to talk with Nancy meant a lot," Sarah said.

After high school, Sarah became involved in an abusive relationship that lasted for six years. She needed to reach out for help again. For the second time, she decided to get help and get better by coming to talk to Nancy. It worked.

Sarah said "With the help of YSB and my family, I was able to overcome the obstacles throughout my life and be successful."

Fast forward to October of 2010. Sarah sent an e-mail to LAYSB staff member, Matt. Fifteen years after she first contacted us as a youth, Sarah was looking to become a volunteer mentor.

"I am now looking to use my experiences to help others and would love to do that through YSB," she said.

Currently, Sarah is in training to become a mentor and is looking forward to giving back to the place that gave so much to her.

In 1976, Lakes Area Youth Service Bureau began helping local youth and their families with intervention support and enrichment programs. Today we serve youth and families throughout the expansive Forest Lake School District and all of Chisago County.

The Work We Do

Healthy Relationships - within families, with positive adult role models and with peers.

Meaningful Involvement - providing powerful opportunities for youth to learn about and engage in the world around them.

Relevant Learning Opportunities – experiences youth choose to be involved in, are relevant to their interests, and are hands-on and free from judgment. High-quality learning experiences exist throughout LAYSB enrichment and intervention programming.

YOUTH ENRICHMENT PROGRAMS:

- Youth Advisory Board
- Community Service Projects
- Job Connection
- Formal and Informal Mentoring Opportunities
- Safe, Supervised Social Events
- Girl Talk and Mocha Mondays

YOUTH AND FAMILY COUNSELING:

- Crisis Services
- REACH Anger Management Group (youth ages 13-15)
- CoRE Skills: A DBT Group for Adolescents
- Individual and Family Therapy

PARENTING SUPPORT AND EDUCATION:

- Phone and Crisis Support
- Weekly Drop-In Parent Support Meeting
- Parenting Education Resources (both print and online)

INTERVENTION SERVICES:

Utilizing a Restorative Justice model where the victim, the offender, the offender's family and the community come together to provide restitution, redirection, and support.

LAYSB incorporates evidence-based best-practice addressing chemical use, and emotion and anger issues. We offer group education classes addressing tobacco awareness, chemical awareness, and trust-building classes for parents and teens.

We know that youth will grow into adults who are able to care for themselves, care for others and contribute to their world in positive ways if they have at least one supportive relationship with a positive role model, meaningful opportunities for involvement in their communities, and access to challenging and engaging learning experiences.

LAYSB is all about making that happen!

Forest Lake Youth Advisory Board members pose proudly with the 549 pounds of food and personal care products they collected for the Family Pathways Food Pantry. This project was made possible through a mini-grant from HandsOn Twin Cities.
